

A Fatal Mistake.

In a local item yesterday the Journal says "There is no better gravel than which runs through the gravel underlying Reno." We should feel guilty of a crime if we did not contradict such a palpable and fatal misstatement, and we do so purely in the interest of our town and our people and in pursuance of what we deem to be our duty as a public newspaper. Those who have not given the matter particular attention will find we are correct if they will take the least pains to study it. The editor of the Journal is President of the water company, and it would be to his interest in more ways than one to inform himself on such subjects and give people a little truth instead of taffy. It is doubted by experts in sanitary science whether there is any one source of disease more prolific than contaminated drinking water. It carries poison concealed so that nothing but a careful analysis can detect it. Professor Vernon Harcourt of London, who ranks as the highest authority, says:

"Shallow wells are useful in supplying scattered population, but they are exposed to the worst forms of contamination when the houses are near together. Any surface impurities are washed in by the rain, and frequently cess-pools are located in the stratum from which they draw the water supply. Such utter neglect of sanitary precaution has led to serious outbreaks of illness. Shallow wells, in fact, must be resorted to with great caution and only when an absence of habitations affords assurance of freedom from pollution."

People frequently say "Oh, our well is perfectly pure, for it is as clear as crystal and as cold as ice," which proves nothing at all. In fact cold water can carry much more poison than warm water, and people may learn to love a flavor given to water by anything but clear or healthy mixtures. An eminent writer says:

"In shallow well water the impurity of all kinds is as a rule greatly increased, because the well affords drainage for the surrounding soil; because for convenience it is usually placed near to the dwelling which it is to supply, and the soil is therefore made the receptacle for household waste and last, but not least, because for similar convenience another shallow pit is usually constructed near by for a cess-pool. Such water, though often most disgustingly contaminated, is usually bright, sparkling and palatable, the saline flavor due to poisonous salts in solution giving it a taste which becomes very much approved after long use."

A moment's reflection will show how dangerous well water must be in Reno. In most parts the top soil is clay or loam, with a stratum of gravel beneath and another of hardpan below. Both wells and cess-pools go through the top soil and mingle their contents lovingly together in the gravel beneath. For twenty years an average of three thousand people have been saturating this gravel bed with the rankest poison known, and it stands to reason that water drawn from such a source cannot be healthful.

THE law for the abolition of slavery went into effect last year, and the papers of Rio de Janeiro have been giving accounts of its operations and results during the year. The Rio News says it has been proved that the apprehensions and predictions of danger from emancipation were unfounded. The freedmen have kept the peace, have made no attempt to overturn the social order of the Empire and have been diligent in doing the work for which they are paid on the plantations. In short, it is evident from the experience of the past year that the abolition of slavery in Brazil has not brought about the evils which were predicted from it, but has been advantageous in many ways to the people of all races in the country.

PERSONS who have a superstitious dread of Friday will be pleased to hear that this is the year for Fridays. It came in on Friday, will go out on Friday and will have fifty-three of the ill-omened days. There are four months in this year that have five Fridays each, changes of the moon occur five times on Friday, and the longest and shortest days of the year each fall on Friday.

THE wheat farmers of the United States should have a little respite this year for the reason that they have a tremendous crop, and at the same time in the great wheat-producing regions of Hungary and southern Russia, the crop is not more than enough to feed the people, while it is also poor in both India and Australia. It is not probable that the crop of Argentina will greatly affect the market, so our own country should have the chance to dispose of most of its surplus crop. But even then the price will be ruinously low and there will be no great profit in moving the tremendous crop, except for the transportation companies.

A GEORGIAN negro named Edward James, who claims to be the Messiah, is frightening the poor colored people of that State almost out of their wits by telling them that the world is coming to an end on the 16th of this month. Nothing could strike more terror to the soul of a Georgian negro than a belief that the world is coming to an end before the watermelon season does.

A PITTSBURGH man has been fined $50 for kissing a girl who didn't want to be kissed, and we think it served him right. When the world is full of girls who do want to be kissed, and when it's so much more fun to kiss one of that sort, the man who will search out one that doesn't enjoy it ought to be fined twice—once for the offense and once for his bad taste.

THE MODERN CYCLONE.

Spiral Wind Storms and How They Move.

Cyclones appear to be more frequent and destructive than formerly in this country; but it is probably only in appearance, as there are more people in the country and more improvements to be disturbed by them, and more newspapers to bring the facts before the people than in former times. That probably makes the difference between then and now. No way has yet been discovered of securing immunity against these dreadful cyclones which sweep across the plains and prairies of the West with irresistible force, says a cotemporary. No structure of human hands appears to be able to withstand their onslaught. Houses and barns are swept away like stubble before them, and the path of a cyclone is marked by general ruin and devastation. No preventive measures can turn them aside from their chosen way, and no shelter is availing which presents any surface to their fierce attack. Modern meteorological science can assign general reasons for their appearance, and can explain their nature and phenomena. They are known to be storms of wind moving in immense spirals or wheels, precisely like the little whirls of dust we so often see on a warm summer day. But then larger whirls sweep onward over vast areas of the earth. They are usually from 200 to 300 miles in diameter, and sometimes much more. Their central point is calm, and this moves forward at the rate of from 2 to 40 miles an hour. These storms originate outside the equatorial belt between the tropics and move toward the poles. If there can be imagined a gigantic petting of wind, whirling rapidly on its peg, and at the same time moving forward, an idea will be gained in a rude way of a cyclone. These storms in the Northern Hemisphere revolve from right to left; in the southern, from left to right.

Scatters His Cash.

The Maharajah of Singapore, who is now in Paris, is astonishing even that that blasé city. His coaches, attendants, costumes and expenditures are based on such a scale of elegance that he seems to have the wealth of the East at his disposal. He far outshines the Shah of Persia, who has not improved Europe with his elegance this trip. The Indian potentate of Singapore has never been on the continent before, and he seems to like Paris so well that his stay bids fair to be a long one. Parisian tradesmen sincerely hope that the affairs of Singapore will not soon recall him to his native land.

Intelligent Laborers.

The Inyo Independent says: At the soda works at Keeler several men of more than average mental attainments are employed. One is a graduate of a leading law college, and has written quite a number of tales and stories of merit. Another is a fine telegraph operator, and a third is a fine musician, whose talent is widely known and highly esteemed. There are others who have respectable attainments in other arts. All the men employed are highly commended for sobriety, industry and pleasing manners.

Valuable Pearls.

The finest private collection of pearls in France belongs to Mlle. Duane, sister-in-law of Thiers. It is valued at 1,500,000 francs. Mme. Thiers, her sister, shortly before her death, gave to the State a pearl necklace worth 100,000 francs. This necklace is now in the Thiers museum in the Louvre. The Duchess d'Uzes, who, after Mlle. Duane, has the finest jewels of all French women, possesses a diamond necklace valued at 1,200,000 francs. Mme. Henry Say has a necklace of white and black pearls, worth 400,000 francs.

Five Deadly Poisons.

The latest chemical analysis of the cigarette shows five deadly poisons—the oil in the paper, the oil of nicotine, saltpetre in the preservation of the tobacco, opium to make it mild, and the oil in flavoring. This piece of information will of course have very little effect in staying the hand of the rash youth who lifts the lighted poison to his lips.

TRUCKEE, Cal., August 12.—A man named Fagan was taken to the passenger train last night and covered with tar and feathers. Five men were notified to leave last night and all obeyed except Fagan. He boasted that he could not be run out of town, and emphasized his remarks by drawing a pistol on one man, beating his paragon cruelly and chasing her with a drawn pistol. He was arrested and lodged in jail, and last night the locks were broken off of the door by one hundred masked men. Fagan was taken out and tarred and feathered. The committee went to his room, got his trunk and valise, checked them to Sacramento and gave him a ticket to the State Capital. They guarded the train until it left. Fagan is said to have served two terms in the State Prison. It is reported that had the vigilantes had proof that he was an ex-convict, they would have hanged him. At one time a rope was around his neck and over a limb, and nearly half of the committee strongly urged his hanging.

NEVADA CITY, Cal., August 12.—Last night at Rudolph Spiller's saloon, a mile from the You Bet railroad station, a free fight occurred in which an Italian shot Samuel Hodge in the neck, William Shea in the groin and also killed another Italian. Spiller escaped by hiding behind a beer keg. The crowd finally got the Italian from under the table, where he was while shooting, and kicked him so it is believed he will die. Sheriff Dunster has gone to the scene of the trouble. GRASS VALLEY, Cal., August 12.—The details are received here of the fight in Spiller's saloon near You Bet last night. The man who did the shooting was Giuseppe Cerini, a native of Switzerland. He was afterwards beaten to death. His partner, Augustino Preziza, was badly beaten and is in a dangerous condition. Wm. Shea was shot in the thigh, the bone being shattered. Hodge was shot in the neck, but may recover. Shea and Hodge live here.

Gave Himself Up.

Special to the GAZETTE.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, August 12.—W. S. Humphries, an old and respected citizen living on a ranch near Cayucas, surrendered to the Sheriff last night, saying he had killed James Bushton with a shotgun. Humphries states that he refused Bushton's passage through a road on his place, and the latter insisted upon passing and turned back to his wagon, threatening to get a gun. Humphries then fired, killing Bushton instantly. Bushton was recently released from the Penitentiary, where he had served a term for murder.

ELLSWORTH, Me., August 12.—President Harrison, the Blaines, Secretary Tracy and a number of other prominent people are the guests of Senator Hale, with whom they will dine to-day and stop over-night. A ride around the country will constitute the principal feature of the day's enjoyment. The President will be in Bar Harbor to-morrow in time for luncheon, and will leave Wednesday morning for Bath, Me., and Manchester, N. H. Thursday morning he will visit Concord, and, after a reception by the Governor and Legislature, will begin his return trip to Washington.

The Prize-Fighting Case.

PURVIS, Miss., August 12.—Judge Terrill opened a special term of the Circuit Court this morning. Sullivan, Referee Fitzpatrick, Bud Renard, Captain Tom Jamison, Charles Rich, Superintendent E. L. Tyler of the Queen & Crescent road and Harry Smith and Gibbets, the last two Riche's employees, were present in court ready for trial. Superintendent Richard Carroll of the Queen & Crescent road and Pat Duffy were absent. The Grand Jury was charged by Judge Terrill on the law of prize-fighting and assault and battery, and the Grand Jurors then retired for consultation. It is hardly probable they will be ready to submit a report to-day.

Battle of North Point.

BALTIMORE, August 12.—Great preparations are being made for the celebration of the anniversary of the battle of North Point on September 26th. It will last three days and include military, trade and allegorical processions, a sham naval battle, for which the Secretary of the Navy has detailed eight war vessels. U. S. troops will also be brought to participate. President Harrison and Cabinet will be present.

Broken Pistol Rod.

WASHINGTON, August 12.—The Fish Commissioner received a telegram this morning from the Commander of the Albatross saying that steamer had broken a pistol rod, and put into Port Townsend, W. T., for repairs. The damage will delay the vessel ten days.

Neighborly Call.

BERLIN, August 12.—The Emperor of Austria has arrived here.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Hardly Probable.

Assemblyman Blakeslee, who was in town this morning, informed a GAZETTE reporter that yesterday he received a letter from Judge Edwards of Carson, saying that the Congressional Irrigation Committee is to be there to-morrow, but it hardly seems probable that such can be the case, for we certainly should have had some notice from Senator Stewart of some one else.

Eureka Items.

The Sentinel of the 10th inst. says: One of the Richmond furnaces started up last Monday. The refinery will be started, it is thought, about the 1st of September. The Ruby and Dunderberg Company put a number of miners to work this week on day's pay. This indicates that they are working in rich ore.

Impenetrable Steel Plates.

The British naval authorities believe they have secured plates absolutely impenetrable by missiles hurled by any great gun at present invented. The discoverers of the secret are said to be two well-known firms—John Brown & Co. and the Beardmore Co.—who are each casting a steel plate by the new process, ten inches thick, for experimental purposes. They profess themselves as perfectly confident as to the ultimate result of the test, which will be of an unusually exhaustive character, and take place at Portsmouth.

A Nitrate King.

Colonel North, who not so many years ago was a machinist in the north of England, but is now known as "the Chilean nitrate king," pays the Chilean Government $1,725,000 a year in export duties on nitrate of soda produced at one of his works. He is building a magnificent country seat near London, England.

The Telephone in Berlin.

The city of Berlin is far ahead of London in telephonic progress, there being 10,000 subscribers. The entire net of wires in the German capital has reached a length of 17,804 kilometers, and the average number of calls amount to 196,601 daily.

Must Be Employed.

The doctors at Bellevue Hospital, New York, say that more criminals were received from three State Prisons to be treated for insanity during the one year of enforced idleness among convicts than in any three years before.

Shaken, Battered and Drenched.

These are three particulars of English grammar. They are also the three successive conditions undergone every day, every other day, or every third day, by the unhappy wretch heedless enough to allow fever and ague to fasten its clutches upon him. No need of it—none. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will and does preserve those who use it from every type of malarial disease, whether intermittent or bilious remittent. For nearly thirty-five years it has been a professional recognized specific for the preventive of these tenacious maladies, not only on our own soil, but the tropical and equatorial lands where the scourge is prevalent at all seasons and in its worst forms. Biliousness, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney complaint, nervousness and debility are also ailments to the complete removal of which the Bitters long since demonstrated its adequacy.

A GENEROUS MAN.

Matt McCabe, of New Brunswick, Ill., offers to pay five dollars to any person troubled with bloody flux, who will take Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy according to directions and does not get well in the shortest possible time. One-half of a 25-cent bottle of this remedy cured him of bloody flux, after he had tried other medicines and the prescriptions of the physicians without benefit. Mr. McCabe is perfectly safe in making this offer, as more than a thousand bottles of this remedy are sold each day and it has never been known to fail in any case of colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, diarrhoea or bloody flux, when the plain printed directions were followed. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

CONCLUDED TO LEAVE

And Not Defy the Whole Community.

Last Saturday's Truckee Republican contained the following: The number of tough individuals who left Truckee since last Saturday night is variously estimated at from seventy-five to two hundred, but it is probable that the latter figure is too high, and that the total number of departures will not exceed one hundred. But for a town the size of Truckee the presence of one hundred toughs is sufficient to be felt, and the sudden departure of the same number is an event to be welcomed. There were very few good-byes said, there were no affectionate farewells said nor heart-breaking leave-takings, no tears were shed and no blessings bestowed upon those who were about to go, never to return. When the 601 issued their edict it was a wild rush and scramble to see who would get a favorite seat on the blind baggage car, or a comfortable position on a brake-beam. When the first passenger train came in there was a big crowd of vagabonds who fell over each other trying to get on the train. The situation was laughable. Most of the exiled went west and the Sacramento papers report that that place is being filled with refugees from Truckee. It is not likely that many of them can stay in a place long, but they will probably scatter in various directions.

The events of the past week show how brave some men are with their jaw and how cowardly they are at heart. One blackleg from San Francisco declared that by a "man" could make him leave Truckee. This was on Monday. He left on the first train Tuesday night. There were a number of such cases. On Wednesday most of the toughs had gone. By Thursday there were only a very few left, and as they showed a disposition to leave it out, there was a "committee" meeting and personal notice was served on them and they promised to go. Jerry Sheridan refused to go, so yesterday he was arrested on a charge of vagrancy. He then began to realize his position and when a friend told him confidentially that it was the intention of the citizens to take him from the jail and hang him, he turned pale and his knees rattled against each other so great was his fright. He was given a chance to see a lawyer, and improved the opportunity to escape. The last seen of him was a small streak up the track. It is reported that there are yet two or three individuals in town who should be made to "git," and it is likely they will get their walking papers to night. It is also reported that some of the Jibboom street women are hiding their pets. This will surely be investigated and the holders as well as the hidden will be summarily dealt with. Praise God! Truckee is now once more respectable. The work was very neatly done and a great success has been achieved. The work now to be done consists in keeping down that which has been accomplished. These toughs must never return nor must any of their kind ever be permitted to abide within the precincts of Truckee.

VILLAINOUS HOODLUMS.

Who Threw Rocks Into the Methodist Church.

Those miserable hoodlums who, during last evening's service, threw several good-sized rocks into the Methodist Church should be hunted up and severely punished. A little boy in the audience was hit on the head by one of the missiles, and it was almost a miracle that more were not injured. As Rev. Mr. Bready expressed it, the miserable whelps "are orphans whose parents are still living," for it is ten chances to one that the parents are more to blame than the youthful candidates for State Prison, who are about sure to be apprehended, and when caught should receive no mercy from jury or court. The young villains are probably the same gang who have been destroying gardens in the western part of town, and if a proper effort is made by the peace officers they are certain to be convicted.

A Fine Quality.

The woodmen out on the N. C. O. road are sending an unusually fine quality of wood in to the Reno market. It is all clear pine, without a stick of fir and no waste at all. The northern country is doing a great deal for its neighbors on the Truckee river, as well as on the Comstock to keep the fires going, and will be a valuable feeder in case of emergency.

Handsomely Entertained.

Colonel and Mrs. R. H. Lindsay invited a large company to meet Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Jenney of Hoboken, N. J., at tea, on Friday evening at their handsome residence on the south side. Guests came and went constantly from five to seven, and were entertained with the proverbial hospitality of their generous host and hostess.

A Rare Opportunity.

During the coming State Fair, Reno merchants should not neglect to make known through the columns of the GAZETTE the inducements they are prepared to offer for trade. Our weekly edition, in particular, circulates among those people of the county outside of the town, who are reached by no other local publication.

Artesian Water in Long Valley.

F. M. Rowland, after going down something over 200 feet for artesian water in Long Valley, was obliged to abandon the project owing to a very hard strata encountered that the machine would not go through. Before the work was abandoned, however, he struck a flow of three gallons per minute.

Suicide.

Patrick O'Connor, an old resident of the Comstock, suicided in that city Saturday afternoon by shooting himself in the mouth. Loss in stock is said to have unbalanced his mind. He was 61 years of age, and had lived on the ledge for many years.

Divide.

An Ohio paper says we have had almost enough rain of late to "drown out the fires of hades," as an old author expressed it.

The Truckee and Sierra City baseball clubs are to play at Truckee on the 18th inst., and as the latter club is said to be a strong one, a good game is assured.

From present indications we shall have a rain before many days. It will have the effect of at least purifying the atmosphere, but whether it will benefit the country much otherwise is doubtful.

Reno juveniles played a match game of baseball yesterday, and next Sunday an Essex nine will play here. It begins to look as if the rising generation is the one to be relied on as possessing sand enough to hang together a season.

The Truckee Lumber Company is building a dam near the outlet of Donner Lake. It is proposed to keep the water at high water mark and draw from it at times when the Truckee river is low and affords an insufficient quantity to run the mill and factory.

A Runaway.

This afternoon one of John Pothoff's lively horses, attached to a top buggy, started from the Palace Hotel, turned into Virginia street and crossed the iron bridge on a dead run. There was no one in the buggy, and so far as learned no damage was done to either horse or buggy.

A Broken Arm.

A FINISHED PERFORMANCE.

Both Actor and Play Have Been Highly Successful.

The talented actor, Robert Mantell, will produce D'Ennery's great five-act play "Monbars" at the Opera House on Wednesday evening next. Both actor and play have been highly successful, and a finished performance is assured. The Times of Philadelphia says:

"The play 'Monbars,' adapted from the French of D'Ennery by Louis Natthal, is one of the best melodramas that have been lately produced, and Mr. Mantell plays the part of Monbars finely. From the opening scene, where the hero rescues the heroine from a mad dog, to the close, where he slays the assassin, who, after slowly poisoning him, attempts to kill him in his sick chamber, he has abundant opportunities for strong effects and he skillfully makes the most of them. Mr. Mantell excellently portrays the character of a rugged, honorable and affectionate man, who, having fought his way from poverty to great wealth and popularity, marries a beautiful young girl, with the hope of settling down to domestic peace, but finds on his wedding day that the girl has married him out of gratitude while her heart belongs to another. The play is full of strong situations, moves rapidly from climax to climax and holds the sympathy of the audience to the end. The house was packed, and Mr. Mantell was called before the curtain three times and loudly cheered at the close of the fourth act, and was compelled to make a little speech at the close of the play."

A Lucky Escape.

Judge W. H. Young received a letter this morning from his wife, who is recreating in the vicinity of Santa Cruz, Cal., stating that she and Mrs. Frank Field were out for a drive, and stopping at a watering trough to let their horse drink, Mrs. Field got out to let the check down, when the animal commenced backing and went over a twenty-foot bank. Mrs. Young fell so near to a log, and the underbrush was so thick, that although both buggy and horse passed over her, she was unharmed, but the carriage was a wreck.

It should be generally known that Dr. Kenley's Dandelion Tonic insures a hearty appetite and increased digestion, dispels nervous depression and low spirits, overcomes lack of energy and wakefulness, and will infuse new life and strength into the weakest invalid. Sold by William Pfingler.

The Bulletin is the leading evening journal in circulation and influence on the Pacific coast. It is distinguished for the brilliancy of its editorial matter, accuracy and completeness of its local news, reviews of current literature and art, and extent of foreign news, while it is the recognized authority in all financial and trade circles. The Daily Bulletin is the only newspaper in California that publishes in extenso the decisions of the Supreme Court.

Owing to the difference in time between San Francisco and the principal news centers in the East, the world's news of each day is furnished by the Bulletin 12 hours in advance of the morning papers. The Weekly Bulletin is a handsome 12 page, 66 column paper, issued every Wednesday morning—the largest and best weekly published in the West. It furnishes the latest and most reliable financial news and market quotations, and gives special attention to agricultural and horticultural news, and is in every respect a first-class family paper, appealing to the interest of every member of the household. The Semi-Weekly Bulletin is the regular Weekly Bulletin and Friday's issue of each week.

Bismarck's Public Career.
He began his public career in 1847 as a member of the united diets, at the age of 23 years, in troublous and critical times, as well for the Prussian crown as for all Germany and western Europe. Everywhere the people were fermenting with the doctrines of liberalism and popular rights. In Prussia the monarchy was absolute. The bureaucratic rule was offensive and oppressive. The king's father had allowed a diet to each of the eight provinces of Prussia. Frederick William III. had just yielded again so far as to grant a brief constitution for Prussia, if the royal decrees of February, 1847, deserve so dignified a name. By these ordinances he assembled at Berlin a union of these provincial bodies under the name of the united diets, and promised that no new loan in time of peace should be contracted without their consent, nor new imposts introduced, nor existing taxes increased without their concurrence. Ever since the national uprising of 1813 the desire of the people for constitutional guarantees and for participation in the government had been increasing. At this time every periodical press in Prussia was liberal. The partisans of the royal prerogative had not a single organ in the kingdom. All the popular orators were liberal. Upon the first assemblage of the united diets not only was the conservative party unorganized, but in their ranks appeared not one orator with ability to capture or control an audience. Bismarck himself was only a hesitating speaker. The fluent liberal orators called forth storms of applause, while Bismarck's firm opposing but modest speeches for the rights of the crown were met with murmurs and hisses. On the first occasion of a speech from him his conservative declaration, of no great significance in itself, was met with such uproar of disorder that he could not proceed. He coolly pulled from his pocket a newspaper and read it till the president restored order, when he laid it aside and proceeded with his speech. At that time he, like a majority of his countrymen, was partly under the influence of the liberal spirit of the times. But in this assembly he heard only the rounded periods of scholastic and theoretic eloquence. There was little evidence of practical statesmanship. There was hot eagerness leaping toward change, but no patience for experimental developments. He perceived that the late royal decrees were not accepted as a finality. They were to be regarded only as the first instalment of a more complete and constitutional liberalism. His opponents were already impatient for much longer strides forward. The king's speech, which reads like a chapter from the records of the ancient Assyrian kings, had denounced all such expectations.

Creole Housekeeping.
When a Creole lady gives a dinner party or a midnight supper one may be sure that the whole bill of fare has passed under her personal supervision, and she herself will add to the gumbo that exact proportion of file necessary to its perfection. While in the pot of gumbo, as it were, it may interest readers to know that all the evening entertainments, which are kept up until the small hours, a plate of this steaming sacrifice, with a snowy island of dry rice, is passed to each guest about two hours before supper, and a most staying, comforting prologue it is, says Harper's Bazar. This custom has given way to newer methods in New Orleans, but is kept up in the plantation houses.
The Creole mistress prepares her own mayonnaise, bisque, devilled crabs, fies and sweets, and is most particular that coffee is strong and abundant enough. To come up to the required standard of strength it must dye the cup, but, then, a very small quantity is drunk. Every Creole, of high or low degree, believes that coffee was the Olympian nectar. The Creole woman can usually rely upon good service from her domestics, for she trains them well and treats them well with consideration, even affection, never with that de haut en bas air which the Anglo-Saxon often assumes towards his inferiors. She has her reward, for her servants stay with her, love her and serve her faithfully, and such efficient cooks and nurses do they become under her tutelage that Creole servants, as they come to be called, are in constant demand among all the American housekeepers.

FORTUNE-HUNTING IN ENGLAND.
The degree in which girls with money are pursued in England goes far beyond anything known in America; yet even in this fashion has as much influence as wealth. Some years ago there was a very wealthy and good-looking American girl in England, and it is stated on absolutely trustworthy authority that for weeks together she had on an average one offer of marriage a day. These were mostly made at places in the country where she was visiting, and were chiefly those of the nobility. She very often received proposals from aristocratic fortune-hunters whom she had not known for twenty-four hours. This was aided by no forwardness on her part, for she was modest and retiring beyond most of her sex. She ended by marrying a great title, saying that she had no faith in any man's sincerity, judging by her experience, and that she might as well secure at least a title, since there could be no other advantage to her in a husband.

Who has not felt how he works the dreadful conquering spirit of ill? Who cannot see, in the circle of his own society, the faded and foredoomed to misery?

A West African King.
Wading up to our ankles in mud through the rank, dense vegetation, and passing a primitive forge, where four swart negroes were making nails on a stone anvil with a stone hammer, their forge bellows being two sheep-skins worked alternately by a man with two short sticks, as if he were playing on a pair of kettledrums—such a bellows and forge, in fact, as you may see any day on the Egyptian hieroglyphics—we caught sight of King Ja-Ja coming to meet us. A brilliant-colored umbrella was held over his head by an attendant, and, as usual with African chiefs, he was followed by quite a crowd of evil-looking rascallions of all ages and in all states of undress, carrying a perfect museum of obsolete arms, the staff of state, like a beaded mace, and other paraphernalia. Ja-Ja is a fine-looking old savage, as black as polished ebony, with hair like silver, and was in full dress to receive us—a red flannel shirt, worn as usual with the tails loose, embroidered most elaborately with the imperial French arms, and plentifully besprinkled with Ns and Es, the Napoleonic bees and other emblems of a by-gone dynasty in France. This was the king's only garment, except the usual bandana loin cloth of two uncut handkerchiefs.

Ja-Ja received his great patron the consul with much finger-snapping and other signs of friendship, and led the way to his house. The outer wall of his compound, which incloses some three acres of ground, is formed by the huts of his slaves and people, the whole place reeking with filth beyond all European imagination. In the centre of the compound stands a fetich indiarubber tree, with a Ju-Ju hut under it, and near it is built the house inhabited by some of Ja-Ja's favorite wives, the palace itself being at the end of the compound and overlooking all. It is a gaudily-painted wooden building, raised on piles some eight feet high, and surrounded by a veranda. The house, a new one, is the pride of old Ja-Ja's heart, and was constructed by negro workmen from the British settlement of Accra. It is furnished with a desperate attempt at European style; but the whole effect is absurdly incongruous with the nude or semi-nude male and female servitors, and the evident uneasiness of Ja-Ja himself among his civilized surroundings. In the corner of the principal parlor which leads straight from the veranda is a most gorgeous red and gold throne, with a liberal allowance of crowns, sceptres, orbs and "King Ja-Jas," scattered on every coign of vantage; and on its top-most pinnacle is stuck jauntily an absurd conical hat like a fool's cap, with enormous feather-like ears on each side of it, which head-dress the king volunteered the statement that he had been "making ju-ju," whatever that might mean.

Buried in the Wrong Dress.
Says the St. Michael's (Md.) Comet: A curious superstition among the colored people was brought into prominent attention in Chestertown very recently. Jane Reed, a colored woman, died, and by mistake she was buried in a dress belonging to Julia Chambers, another colored woman. The colored people believe that if a dead body is buried in an article of clothing belonging to a living person, the owner of the article will decline as the dead body decays. Julia Chambers firmly believed this calamity would happen to her, and insisted upon having the body exhumed and the dress taken off. Consequently, at the witching hour of midnight, the grave was dug into, the coffin opened, and the dress cut off and drawn out.

Dr. F. D. Larke, of Rogers City, Michigan, says the epidemic of last year in Presque Isle county, in which so many persons lost their lives, was cholera dysentery instead of cholera as first reported. He used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and says it succeeded, where all other remedies failed. Not a single case was lost in which it was used. This remedy is the most reliable and most successful medicine known for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, diarrhoea and bloody flux. Twenty-five and fifty-cent bottles for sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

Oregon is one of the most productive States in the Union. Its vast mineral regions contain gold, silver, copper, iron and coal. In its immense tracts of grazing lands support thousands of cattle and sheep, and its extensive agricultural regions produce all the cereals in abundance, the yield per acre being in some instances, the largest in the world. Among the useful and valuable products of the Willamette State may be mentioned Oregon Kidney Tea, which has proved a boon to thousands afflicted with pain in the back and kidney difficulties. It is purely of vegetable composition and never fails. Sold by William Fininger.

The immediate symptoms of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are a distressing sense of weight, oppression and fullness in the stomach, heartburn, loss of appetite, foul breath, belching, flatulency, nausea, pains in the shoulders and breast. Dr. Henley's Dandelion Tonic promotes healthy digestion and removes all unhealthy symptoms. Sold by William Fininger.

This is the season of the year when the raw cold winds create sad havoc with the hands and complexion. Soft, white hands and a clear "peachy" complexion can be assuredly preserved by the frequent application of Dillard's Specific. If rubbed into the skin it leaves no greasy surface. Tin skin-sober is sold by William Fininger.

Advice to Mothers.
Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle. 173
